

Scoping Workshop
Synergies of Arts and Science for Sustainability Transformations
November 17th, IASS, Potsdam

Tentative Agenda¹

8.30h	Coffee and registration
9.15h	Welcome & introduction to the workshop Amy Green & Manuel Rivera, IASS
9.30h	Tour de table: Participants introduce themselves and share motivation for attending the symposium (Why should we promote synergies between arts and science in the first place?)
10.15h	Disruptive Muse ² 1 – Rolf Sudmann
10.20h	Plenary discussion and collection of breakout topics: What are the perceived oppositions or tensions within and between arts & science (working process, products, conventions, rules)? Which are the most problematic in terms of art/science collaboration?
11.20h	Coffee break Voting for the breakout discussion groups
11.40h	Disruptive Muse 2 – Ursula Biemann (tbc)
11.45h	Breakout groups: Tensions and perceived oppositions e.g. (1) Routines vs events (2) Analysis vs intuition (3) Instrumentality vs purposelessness
12.55h	Disruptive Muse 3 – Eva Rahner
13.00h	Lunch

¹ as of November 6th, 2015

² The „disruptive muses“ will allow the presenters to briefly show something related to their artistic work, both interrupting the discussions and stimulating them with non-verbal impulses.

- 14.00h Reporting back from the breakouts
(with agreed bullet points for documentation)
- 14.15h Disruptive Muse 4 – Adib Fricke
- 14.20h Plenary discussion
Considering pragmatic and fundamental obstacles, where do we see potential for synergies between science and the arts?
- 15.00h Disruptive Muse 5 – Erika Blumenfeld
- 15.05h Voting for discussion topics for breakout groups: Fields of synergy
- 15.15h Coffee break
- 15.30h Breakout groups: Artistic-scientific synergy potentials
Each group will be asked to sketch out a specific project idea to illustrate this synergy
- 16.45h Disruptive Muse 6 – Julian Klein
- 16.50h Reporting back from the breakouts
- 17.05h Wrap-up & conclusions
Amy Green & Manuel Rivera, IASS
- 17.15h End